

Review 703

March 2020

1 Introduction

Paper 703 is about academic discussion. This paper discusses the academic discussion in three aspects or sections, "Prepare and Gather Material", "Pay Attention", and "Participate in the Discussion". The overall of this paper is great.

2 Structure

The structure of this article is great. Except for introduction and conclusion section, there are three sections in this article about, respectively, preparation, pay attention, and participating in the discussion. However, in the third section "Pay attention", I notice there is only one subsection "3.1 listening to understand". I believe the author can improve this putting the content in subsection 3.1 into the whole section 3.

3 Logic and Content

The logic flow and the content of this paper are great. This paper has great readability. For the content of this paper, I believe there is something the author can improve. For the second section of this article, there are two subsection Invitations and Material Preparation. I believe that these two subsections reduce the consistency of the whole second section, and I personally think the author can combine these two subsections and divide them in a new way, and it will improve the structure of the second section.

4 Grammar

I am not able to find out obvious grammar errors within this paper. However, the article at some place is somewhat difficult to understand. For example, "This can enable a discussion that prompts questions and comments that are more complex, as opposed to potentially shallow rebuttals generated when understanding is lacking.”, in this sentence, the beginning word ”This” may make readers confused.

5 Conclusion

This article has an overall great structure, logic, and content except for some small problem which won’t affect the overall of this paper. However, this paper can be better with improvement in these problems.

References